

Why TimeSolv is the Best Alternative to TimeSlips

The American legal system is based on principles of tradition and consistency, so it only makes sense that attorneys tend to follow tradition when running their practices. But as technological advancements make their mark on the legal industry, attorneys are beginning to recognize the benefits of moving from traditional systems to more innovative options.

TimeSlips represents a traditional system that no longer meets the modern needs of legal practice. As a result, many law firms are leaving this antiquated billing tool behind for more efficient, affordable, and effective options. TimeSolv represents a productive and profitable future. This article will tell you everything you need to know about why TimeSolv is the best alternative to TimeSlips for your law firm.

The Economic Benefits

Let's start with saving some money. Reviews of TimeSlips reveal how costly a system it can be for law firms. Sage starts the basic pricing at $274.00 for a one-time payment per user. Advanced features require a costly upgrade.

The initial purchase price is only the first expense. TimeSlips also requires the use of a dedicated server. In today's office environment, most businesses don't have an extra server just laying around. Therefore, the new user will likely have to cover the additional expense of purchasing and installing a server within their office.

Purchase and installation are not the only expenses related to the server. If it breaks down, TimeSlips will not send a technician out to repair it. Law firms are left with a server repair bill in addition to the significant expense they are paying to maintain the TimeSlips system.

Annual updates to the system also add to the costs. These updates require additional fees, as does technical support for outdated versions of the software. This forces users to either pay for outside technicians should something go wrong or pay for the system upgrade.

TimeSolv offers plans to fit a range of different budgets, including single user monthly subscriptions starting at $30, with a minimal increase for additional timekeepers. Annual subscriptions come with even lower rates. Monthly subscriptions offer penalty-free cancelation, and users can apply for a non-obligation free trial before making a full commitment.

System updates are automatically included with TimeSolv subscriptions at no extra cost, and the company offers a variety of support features, including many free options. TimeSolv users are always up-to-date and provided with a standard of excellence.

Cloud-Based Technology

As previously mentioned, antiquated operating systems like TimeSlips require a secure dedicated server with enough space to support all of the application files. A server is not only an expensive purchase, it also requires monthly upkeep and space within the physical office. A single malfunction can leave a law office without a billing system.

With cloud-based technology, TimeSolv has cut out the server completely. All data is stored virtually, so there is no need for a physical server within the office. The benefits of this technology include:

- Mobility – With an on-premise software system, staff members working outside of the main office may not have access to the invoicing tools they need. An on-premise billing system can leave law firms with a disjointed and ineffective invoicing process. Cloud billing consolidates all of your firm's billing into a central location. All firm members can track time and access necessary data, no matter where physically located.
- Reliability – On-premise legal billing systems can break down quite often, especially if they aren't regularly serviced. As a cloud service provider, TimeSolv works to ensure that its software remains virtually 100% available to your firm. They handle all software and security updates remotely, so firms do not waste valuable time and resources with these tasks onsite.

- Greater Security – Advanced security is another reason why TimeSolv is the best alternative to TimeSlips. With a unique data center provided by Amazon Web Services (AWS); data is secure and encrypted 256-bit SSL for transmission between the browser and the data center. The system creates securer access, virtually 100% available no matter where law firm members work.

Specialized Training and Support

TimeSolv subscribers are met with a level of exceptional customer service. The company begins with comprehensive training for all firm members following the initial purchase of a subscription. The website's knowledge base is also equipped with the tools and resources a firm needs to quickly respond to time tracking or billing issues.

Assistance is always available with TimeSolv's priority online and the telephone-based support system available 7 days a week. All representatives are experienced and knowledgeable, so law firms are never met with the issue of employees not knowing how to operate the system.

Waiting extensive periods of time for assistance, or having to pay extra for specific support resources, can leave law firms missing out on billable hours and clients unsatisfied. TimeSolv is an upgrade to the future of ease and success.
