Key Harrington Barnes migrates all Timeslips data to TimeSolv

"One of the major concerns that the partners had and why they stayed with Timeslips for such a long time was the fear that data wouldn't be accessible. Once they were assured all the old data would be available in TimeSolv, they were ready to make the move."

About Key Harrington Barnes

A labor and employment law firm in Dallas, Texas, Key Harrington Barnes employs 12 attorneys and support staff.

Their attorneys travel frequently and were unable to track time on the go with Timeslips. Once they saw TimeSolv was web-based and available anywhere on any device and they could migrate all their historical Timeslips data, they made the decision to move.

The Situation

When Kimberly Porter started at Key Harrington Barnes several months ago, she realized immediately that Timeslips was not the answer for their billing and timekeeping needs. "I did not find Timeslips to be very user friendly, it wasn't as sophisticated as the previous billing software that I used at my last firm. I also felt that it was outdated and not a very efficient billing software program."

Key Harrington Barnes had been using Timeslips for the past 13 years and one big fear was the ability to move all that historical data into a new system.

The lawyers at the firm also travel a great deal and needed a way to easily track time and expenses while on the go.

The Solution

Fortunately, Porter had a solution she knew would work. "I started using TimeSolv in February 2011 at my previous firm and I loved it and thought it would be good fit for Key Harrington Barnes."

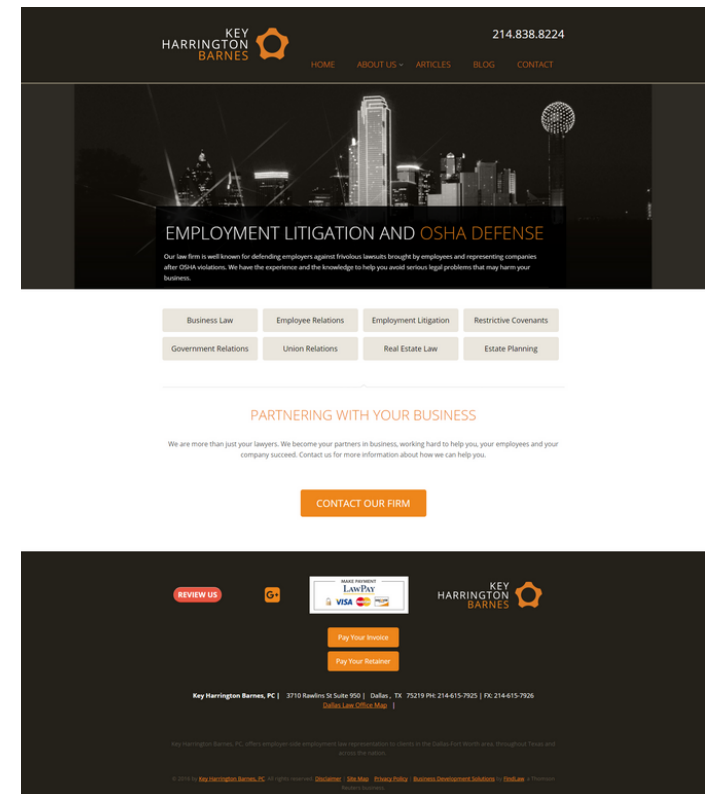

She knew as a cloud-based program TimeSolv was accessible from any device, at any time, whether online or offline, with the mobile app and TimeSync desktop application.

"You don't need a server, you don't need multiple licenses. It's very user-friendly and the interface is wonderful."

However, there was still the question about all the historical data they'd accumulated over 13 years and could it be accessible and easily moved to a new system?

"It was a major concern of the partners," states Porter. "We scheduled a conference call with TimeSolv to address our fears."

Once they learned that TimeSolv can auto-migrate all the Timeslips data, the decision was easy.

The Conversion Process

For many firms, the whole process of converting from one billing and timekeeping solution to another is daunting. Key Harrington Barnes was no different. But TimeSolv works closely with firms every step of the way.

"TimeSolv made it easy to convert because we developed a plan," said Porter. "They helped determine when the best time was for us to stop using Timeslips, when the best time would be to upload data, the best time to review the data and the best time to go live. So there was a process when it came to the conversion that I felt was very efficient and very thorough on TimeSolv's behalf."

"With TimeSolv, it took about two days to do edits and get bills out for our attorneys instead of the five or six days with Timeslips."

Results and Benefits

The very first billing cycle with TimeSolv showed the immediate benefits of switching. "I've definitely received really good feedback from the attorneys," says Porter. "They like the layout of the invoices compared to Timeslips and I've gotten good feedback from our clients regarding that too."

The partners are also enthusiastic. "They're very excited about using TimeSolv!" exclaimed Porter. "They wanted to be able to track their own time and now they have that. They're already using the mobile app, they've downloaded the desktop app. They are really enjoying being able to enter their time and see how much they're billing for the month."

Conclusion

Porter concluded by stating why she recommends TimeSolv for other law firms.

"I would recommend TimeSolv because of the customer service and the level of support. I don't think that you will get this level of experience with any other program. They're accessible via phone, chat, email. They're very knowledgeable about the program.

The developers have done a really great job and they listen to suggestions and feedback. They're always willing to make improvements to the program and I've can honestly say over the last six years the program just gets better and better.

TimeSolv will help your firm be more efficient in its billing and timekeeping."
